TRAINING FROM OUR INCLUSION PROGRAMME

More emphasis is being given to effective ways of achieving 'Social Inclusion'.

People using health and social care services can be excluded from many positive roles and relationships in the community. Inclusion results in having better, happier lives...and it also improves financial efficiency as people access a fuller range of community resources.

NDTi offers a range of training days to help people to respond to these challenges:

Community Mapping Training Day – Manchester, December 6th £95 + VAT

Exploring perceptions about community inclusion and welcome. A one-day course on how to map local community opportunities and make connections. This training is generic and applicable to any organisation or group working with or supporting excluded people.

Inclusion Web Resource Pack Training Day - Birmingham, January 12th £95 + VAT

The Inclusion Web is an easy way to help people, and the organisations who support them, to look at the people and places in their lives and how things may be changing over time. The Inclusion Web can help to measure and evidence success in improving the quality of people's lives. This valuable tool is presented in an easy to use leaflet with step by step instructions.

New – Commissioning for Community Inclusion – London, February 23rd
£95 + VAT

This course offers commissioners and others a chance to look at approaches to commissioning which build community capacity and encourage community action. It is not just about health and social care – this approach recognises the fact that universal and community services should be accessible to all.

The course reflects the ideas and information set out in our guide: 'Commissioning for Community Inclusion: Eight Essential Actions. A guide for public sector commissioners' published in September 2011 and available at the following link: <http://www.ndti.org.uk/publications/ndti-publications/>

Social Inclusion Training Pack Training Day – Nottingham, March 5th
£95 + VAT

Strategies for supporting individuals to build connections. A one-day course on how to use the Social Inclusion Training Pack, providing key information alongside really practical workshop exercises to help participants focus on the specific things that need to be done to support people in the community beyond services

New – Community Inclusion for Providers – Birmingham or London, April
£95 + VAT

Many providers have clearly stated intentions of supporting the people they serve to be full and active members of their local community. This training offers providers the chance to reflect on their work in this important area of activity, hear examples of good practice from around the country and to develop action planning where progress can be measured and evaluated.

TRAINING FROM OUR OLDER PEOPLE & AGEING PROGRAMME

We have a particular focus on equality and inclusion for older people who are disadvantaged or excluded from society, maybe because of their need for support, their age, race, disability or gender. All of our work is underpinned by strong values and evidence about “what works” in ensuring that older and disabled people are treated, not as passive recipients of services, but as full and active citizens with assets, gifts, talents and skills. Please find below information about our Achieving Age Quality Course.

New - Achieving Age Equality – Birmingham, January 25th, £95 + VAT

NDTi takes a life course approach to ageing well – i.e. what happens to you throughout your life has an impact on life chances, health and wellbeing in later life. This has major implications for the way public services are commissioned and delivered, and how people of all ages think about preparing for their own later life.

We believe that age discrimination is pervasive within our culture, institutions and media and that to achieve a fundamental shift in thinking about age and preparing for an ageing society will require practitioners, providers and commissioners to adopt a very different approach to planning, delivering and providing local services.

We are offering one day, pay per place event that will address these themes, including:

- What do we mean by age discrimination? Developing a shared understanding of the issues and the uncertainties we face in this area.
- What does age equality in public service delivery look like?
- What tools are available to us in order to work towards achieving age equality in local goods and services?
- How do we measure the effectiveness of what we are doing?
- Action planning for the future.

RESEARCH & EVALUATION WORKSHOP

NDTi has a varied portfolio of research and evaluation work designed to inform and influence the nature of services and wider community supports to promote inclusive lives. These activities span short, medium and long term projects for government departments, grant giving bodies, local authorities, NHS organisations, the third sector and strategic partnerships. Please find below information about our Real World Evaluation course.

New – Real World Evaluation – Southampton, 27th January, £95 + VAT

NDTi's approach to evaluation builds on Realist Evaluation methodology, which aims not just to answer 'is this model working?' but also 'how is it working?', 'who is it working for?' and 'what are the critical factors that are needed to make it work elsewhere?' These questions have never been more pertinent than in the current economic climate.

We are offering one day, pay per place training events that aim to share NDTi's grounded experience in designing, conducting and learning from realist evaluation work. For those who really want to get under the skin of evaluation, NDTi also offer follow up training, including tailored evaluation capacity-building support for your organisation.
