"This was a really amazing programme. It has been extremely timely for me moving from health towards social care senior role. It has started to make a massive impact at work. Brilliant facilitators as well."
Leadership Programme Participant 2018

Our leadership development programme is designed to support public sector leaders working to develop their skills and presence as leaders.

We work with authentic, courageous, values-based organisations and leaders.

One of the programme's unique characteristics is that alongside formal leadership theory it draws in the NDTi's philosophy of all people, communities and organisations being rich in assets and practice from our work alongside large and small, statutory and voluntary sector organisations around the country and with a range of different people and 'client' groups.

We have successfully worked with hundreds of leaders across the sector which helps to continually refine and update our programme, which focuses on participant's leadership capabilities and knowledge to expand influence to increase impact.

The Programme:

We will work with you to co-design and adapt the programme to your needs.

As a core, the programme contains:

- A detailed focus on the foundations of leadership, personal style and achieving change
- A Human Rights based approach to leadership
- Resilience and a positive psychology approach to leadership
- Brave leadership - authenticity, courage and trust
- Influencing and working in partnership with others
- Co-production, engagement and team/community leadership and decision making.

Delivery weaves together presentations, guest speakers, group work, individual reflection and action planning. Each programme is for up to 20 participants and can be delivered online as eight sessions over ten weeks, in person as two two-day events or by blending approaches. We have established ways of working to ensure that online delivery does not compromise the shared experience.
